

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

[0023] A transition encoded dynamic bus includes an encoder circuit at the input to the bus and a decoder circuit at the output to the bus. The encoder circuit generates a signal indicative of a transition at the input to the bus rather than the actual value at the input. The decoder circuit decodes the transition encoded information to track the appropriate value to be output from the bus.